CROSSWORD

Here is Translator's second multilingual crossword, put together by Beatrice Barr. Some words have found their way into the magazine and our weekly Dispatches newsletter on Substack. If the clue refers to a word you'll find in an article in this magazine, or a Dispatch, we've made it easier for you by indicating this with a * or Dispatch # respectively. Send in a photograph of your completed entry or tag us on social media. If you're the first, we'll give you a free subscription to Translator for a year. Good luck! Bit twafik! Bonne chance!

Hint: Arabizi is an informal, written code that mixes the Latin alphabet and Arabic numerals to transcribe Arabic dialects. Numbers are used where there is no phonetic equivalent in English e.g. 7 is used for the letter ح and 3 for ع. It's commonly used for texting and on social media.
